

Adam Koets, OT, Giants

Before being selected by the New York Giants in the 2007 NFL Draft, Adam Koets had a successful career at Oregon State. Adam started at left tackle for three seasons for the Beavers. During his senior year, he was awarded with All-Conference honors. During college he was known as a quick, smart, and durable blocker and would consistently seal defenders from game action.

Adam will be joining the coaching staff at the Pro Football Camp for the first time this summer.
